BRIEF PROFILE

Aimen is a Managing Associate at C&S Partners. She is a disputes lawyer with a diverse practice spanning international arbitration, commercial litigation, and advisory work across real estate, infrastructure, defence, education, financial services, and energy. She has represented global corporations, investment firms, and leading Indian business groups in high-stakes proceedings before domestic and international arbitral tribunals, and courts in India.

Aimen has acted in complex SIAC arbitrations involving cross-border joint ventures in the real estate sector, as well as in a landmark arbitration against the Patanjali Group, securing an award directing the transfer of equity shares to her client. She has also represented a New York-based investment firm in court proceedings arising from an AAA arbitration seated in New York.

Her international enforcement experience includes representing a Singapore-based education services group in proceedings involving questions of Indian public policy and the regulatory framework governing not-for-profit educational institutions. She has appeared in appellate proceedings concerning the ability of corporations to render architectural services in India.

Aimen regularly advises major real estate, infrastructure, defence, and fintech entities on regulatory and contractual matters, including disputes before the Supreme Court of India, challenges to blacklisting orders, RBI compliance for payment gateways, and contractual issues relating to offshore oil and gas assets. Her work reflects strategic clarity, meticulous preparation, and a strong command over contract law.
